Supply of Buffalo Creek at Berlin is in dispute.

Somerset, June 22.—Proceedings instituted by the Niver Coal Company of Baltimore to restrain the Berlin Water Company of Berlin, Somerset county, were up before Judge F. J. Kooser on Tuesday. The plaintiff alleges that it has opened by slope a vast field of coal in the Berlin Water Company's tract in order to work the same economically has installed electric haulage, compressed air drills and a battery of three 300 horse power boilers, water for which and for the domestic use of their employees living in the mining town of McDonaldton is obtained from a stream known as Buffalo creek, and which is necessary to carry on their mining operations. The bill of complaint alleges that the defendant company without tendering to plaintiff either damages or security therefor, appropriated the stream supplying the plaintiff's mining plant at a point above the point on said stream where plaintiff utilizes said stream, thus depriving the latter of a sufficient supply of water and rendering its operation worthless.

The Berlin Water Company in its answer states it obtained a charter from the State almost a year ago, and at great expense constructed a reservoir and laid pipe lines from the same to the town of Berlin, where it has engaged to supply the residents with water for domestic use and has contracted to furnish the town with fire protection. It alleges that the issuing of an injunction at this time will interfere with the company's contracts, and will cause great loss to the stockholders. Some time ago the Berlin Water Company floated an issue of some $20,000 of bonds, the value of which will be largely affected by the termination of the present action. Besides the parties immediately concerned in the present litigation the residents of Berlin, many of whom have had bath rooms and other conveniences afforded by a public water supply, installed in their homes, are interested, and the decision of the court is anxiously awaited by them. The Berlin Water Company was promoted by Mr. Pleasant, Pa. capitalists.

MUNYON'S WITNESSES TESTIFY

To the Virtues of His New Paw Paw Remedy

THE MAYOR OF AUGUSTA, ME., GIVES PAW PAW STRONG ENDORSEMENT

According to Arcadius, Dr. Litt, Dr. Phil, Leading Philadelphia Professor and World-famed Linguist, Speak, for

PAW PAW

J. J. Burbank, a Prominent New England Hotel Keeper, Cured of Dyspepsia.

E. P. Wood, of Boston, Buyer for the Great Dry Goods House of Jordan, Marsh & Co.

WAS CURED

And Hundreds More—An Army of Cured Testify for "Munyon's Paw Paw."

City Hall, Augusta, Me. Prof. J. M. Munyon.

Dear Sir—For the past year or more I have been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion and can truthfully state that after the use of part of one bottle of Paw Paw I find my stomach very much improved and expect to become entirely free from this ailment with the further assistance of your great vegetable poison, Paw Paw.

G. A. ROBERTSON, Mayor of Augusta, Me.

Professor Arcadius Avelanus, one of the leading savants of the age, says:

I used to wonder, when in the land of the Paw Paw, why some clever physician or chemist had not brought that wonderful fruit before suffering humanity, as a powerful tonic for the stomach.

I have used Munyon's Paw Paw, and it is a splendid thing. I congratulate Professor Munyon for his clever enterprise, for doing what others had neglected to do.

ARCADIUS AVELANUS, Dr. Litt, Dr. Phil, 704 S. Washington Square, Philadelphia.

J. L. Burbank, Prop. Hotel Star, Manchester, N. H., cured of chronic dyspepsia, writes:

I have for years had dyspepsia in a most chronic form. I was dizzy all the time and suffered with headaches. I have taken Paw Paw for ten days and am now perfectly cured and I cheerfully give this testimony and will answer all questions in order to prove that the above "miraculous" is genuine.

(Signed) J. J. BURBANK, Prop. Hotel Star, Manchester, N. H.

Dr. E. P. Wood, buyer of Jordan, Marsh & Co., Boston, says:

Dear Sir—I have been taking Paw Paw for some time and find it a most tonic and it has proven itself a wonderful medicine. I eat well and can truthfully state that the food I eat digests perfectly. After taking Paw Paw I feel braced up and recommend this wonderful remedy to all brain workers who are in need of a stimulant.

(Signed) E. P. WOOD, 1163 State street, Boston, Mass.

Dr. W. T. Graham, a prominent Philadelphia physician, says:

Thousands and thousands of years this Paw Paw fruit has grown in plenty all over India and all over America and generations have gone without man discovering the value of this fruit, thousands and thousands of lives could have been saved had men known its medicinal qualities.

Like electricity, it has always been with us, but it took Edison to harness electricity and make it light the world.

So it took a Munyon to discover the virtues of Paw Paw and give to the world a positive cure for most stomach and nerve troubles.

Doesn't such a truthful testimony as that arouse you to the necessity of doing something for yourself?

Have you a rebellious stomach that gives you no peace night or day?

Have you unclean nerves that keep you on edge and ready to almost fly through the roof at the least noise or disturbance?

Do you lie awake night after night, vainly trying to soothe and get up in the morning more tired and exhausted than when you went to bed?

If these troubles are interfering with your happiness and health, Paw Paw should be set at work without a minute's delay. Get a bottle to-day and to-morrow you'll have another story to tell.

Munyon's Paw Paw (large bottles), price $1. Paw Paw Laxative Pills, 25c. per box. At all druggists.

Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in low countries, where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Thus in America among the Indians living on the plateau between the ranges of the Andes at an elevation of from 10,000 to 11,000 feet the men have voices like women and women like children, and their singing is a shrill monotone.

MEN'S UNION SUITS.

The Popular Choice of Summer Underwear.

Maybe you have never worn a Union Suit, and if not, of course, you don't know how comfortable they are, but on the other hand, you know well enough what a nuisance it is these warm days to have the ordinary sort of underwear clinging to you, and becoming more and more uncomfortable with every move you make. Union Suits, being all in one piece, cannot do this—it stays where you put it, and consequently does away with all the discomforts of a separate shirt and drawers. We carry a complete line of these in Cotton, Lisle Thread and Australian Wool, in the following grades:

$1, $1.50, $2 and $2.50.

A Little Group of FIGURED LAWN.

8½¢ per yard.

Former Price, 15 cents per yard.

There isn't very much of this under-priced Lawn—perhaps a couple of hundred yards, but there is a good selection of patterns to choose from. They include pieces that range from five to twenty yards, all of them fifteen cent values, but owing to the fact that the patterns (all of which have been our best sellers) cannot be duplicated, we must close them out at once, and regard a radical cut of this kind as the surest method of doing so.

A CLEAN-UP IN Lace and Wash Stocks.

25¢ and 35¢ kind at 19¢.

Our Ladies' Neckwear has been one of the most active stocks in our busy store, and as a result many lines have become broken. We have taken all of these depleted lines and, regardless of the prices they bore, put them all in one group at 19¢.

There are among them stocks made in White, Blue and Pink Pique; also many pretty Lace, Crash and Lawn stocks. They form a goodly sized assortment from which to make a selection.

EXTRAORDINARY SALE

Trimmed Hats.

Our milliners have outdone themselves in their efforts to make this sale a success, to give you values you never could have expected to secure. They have proven fully their ability in the past to create the most beautiful millinery effects ever seen in this vicinity. All this creative genius and artistic skill has combined to give you in this sale a selection of millinery beauty which would seem impossible at four times the prices placed upon them. There are two groups of them,

One Group at $1.95.

Consisting of hats whose real values are $3.00, in a large assortment of shapes and beautifully trimmed.

Another Group at $2.95.

Consisting of hats whose values are easily $5.00 handsomely trimmed with flowers and ribbons, in a bewildering variety of shapes.

The New Tourist Skirt

In Crash and Scotch Mixtures.

These are an entirely new style, made in walking lengths, and very handsomely made, and combined with a shirt waist will make the snappiest kind of a Summer costume. They have all the style and appearance that a custom-tailor could give them, strapped seams, trimmed with tabs and self-covered buttons. Then the materials of which they are made are the most favored of the season. Light in weight, but having the shape-retaining qualities of the heavier goods. We show them in two prices,

$5.00 and $8.50.

New Gloves a Necessary Item.

The Prettiest Costume Incomplete Without Them.

Little matters it if your Summer bonnet and gown are "dreams" if the gloves strike a discordant note as to color, style or age. New gloves are easy to get—there's little to pay for the most stylish sort if you come to The Wright-Metzler Co., Cotton, Silk and Lisle Thread.

From 25¢ to $1.00.

Twenty-Five Mohair Skirts

At a Diminished Price.

These are very stylish, perfect-fitting skirts in blue and black Mohairs, strap seams, and prettily trimmed with Mohair buttons to match. There is no material more satisfactory in wearing qualities than Mohair, and when you consider that we have sold these at $4.00, and they were exceptional values at that price, you will easily realize the bargain you will be securing in the purchase of one of these at $2.48.

There are only a small lot of them, of course, but there is all sizes among them, so that by coming early you can find a suitable size.

Muslin Underwear

of Superlative Worth.

We have spared no pains to make this department one of exceptional value-giving, and our efforts have been crowned with success. We are offering values which we are sure surpass any muslin underwear value you have ever seen. There are many reasons upon which we base this claim, but we cannot detail them here. We invite inspection. We feel sure of your patronage.

Dainty, Comfortable Summerwear FOR THE BABY.

The baby suffers just as much as you do from the excessive heat of summer weather, and would probably grumble just as loud if it could. In fact everything for baby's comfort can be found here. Gauze vests, hosiery, shoes, caps, etc.

While E. L. Robinson and son, John, were working on a scaffold on the dwelling that is being erected by John Pruitt of North Scottdale on Tuesday morning, the scaffold gave way and both men fell to the ground, falling about 20 feet. Mr. Robinson received a bad fracture on his left arm above his wrist and also had his hand cut while his son escaped injury. Mr. Robinson will be off work several weeks.

Low Ocean Rates.

F. A. Kail has just received several telegrams from steamship companies he is representing announcing that the ocean fare is only $15 from New York to Liverpool or Southampton, third class, and nearly so for the rates from England. The White Star Line and the American Line does not agree with the Cunard line who lately installed a new line from Plume, Hungary, to New York and in order to make a complete competition two large German lines have established also a new line from Plume to New York, hence the disagreement and low rates. It is a good chance for poor people in hard times.

Forty-six more ovens will be blown out at the White mines tomorrow, leaving a total of 100 in blast. Keister's works will run only four days this week on account of repairs being made.

FORT NECESSITY PICNIC.

Arrangements for Fourth of July Rapidly Coming to a Focus.

The committee of arrangements for the celebration of the battle of Fort Necessity, on July 4, held a meeting Tuesday night in the office of District Attorney Jones at Uniontown. Robert P. Hopwood announced the appointment of the following finance committee: A. E. Jones, Thomas Hudson, A. J. Hunt, Charles Hathaway, J. L. Johnson, Wallace Miller, Charles Symbor and J. W. Dawson. The amount of money which this committee hopes to raise is $1,000. Those who may be disposed to contribute voluntarily need not wait for a visit from any one of the members of this committee, but may send their donations to anyone of the members.

It was reported that the big flag belonging to the First National Bank has been secured to fly from the great flag pole that will be erected on the battle ground. The speakers' platform will be erected under the supervision of Mr. Fazenbaker. It will seat about 100 people. It will be covered with canvas to protect the occupants from the sun. The folding chairs for this platform, about 100 in number, have been secured from Sam. Shuman.

The duty of preserving order on the ground, it was suggested, should come under the supervision of Sheriff Prock, if he should be present, assisted by County Detective McBeth, Constables Bowle of Uniontown, Sheridan Crawford of South Union, Beeson of Wharton, Daniels of Stewart and Burk of Henry Clay township.

A letter was received from Rev. A. A. Leaning, the historian of Wilkesburg, accepting the invitation of the committee to be present. As an expression of the public esteem in which the fire companies of Uniontown are held, it was decided to offer them free transportation to and from the site as far as possible. Fifty members of the department shall be designated by the captains of their respective companies. It was also decided that in case any of the old soldiers belonging to Wilf. F. Stewart Post of Uniontown should wish to go and be unable to provide their own transportation, the committee will take care of them. This transportation will be in wagons, and under the circumstances it will be the best that can be secured. As many men as possible will be put in one wagon.

Boyd Crumline, the historian of Washington county, has also signed his intention to be present. Ray J. A. Waters, superintendent of the Juniata School, will see that all the soldiers' orphans in his charge, whom he thinks ought to attend the celebration, are there under his own personal supervision.

The Boys' Brigade of Uniontown will also look after themselves in the matter of getting to the ground and back again. An effort will be made to effect an arrangement with Superintendent Jacob Beeson of the National Pike, by which in consideration of a stipulated sum, the toll gates at Hopwood and near Somerset will be

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.
The Republican platform is a plain, unvarnished tale. Its authors made no attempt at fine writing. There is a notable absence of political pyrotech-nics. It is a concise, succinct and possitive statement of Republican principles. It leaves no room for doubt, evasion or misconstruction. It is a tale simply told.

The platform is to a large extent
a recital of what the party has done for the country, especially during the past seven years; but it is a record to be proud of, and the party may be excused for holding it up for public inspection. The St. Louis Convention next week will tell the public what the Democratic party intends to do if it is placed in power. But it has been suggested that a record is better than a prospectus, and everybody who has had any experience with both is ready to subscribe to this statement.

The tariff plank is the first and most important. It declares that Protection is a cardinal policy of the Republican party and should be maintained;
and that when it is deemed necessary to change or alter rates of duty by reason of changed conditions, such readjustment should be made by the friends of Protection, not entrusted to its enemies. The Democratic party has always been against Protection, and its every attempt to legislate on the tariff question has brought business stagnation and hard times upon the country.

The platform reaffirms the principle of Reciprocity, first enunciated by the late James G. Blaine, and declares it to be the duty of the party "to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our national currency," which, it very wisely concludes, cannot be safely entrusted to the Democratic party, certainly not to the Bryan and Hearst wing of it.

The declaration on the subject of Trusts is almost in words as well as thought identical with the views of The Courier as expressed repeatedly in these columns. It is as follows:

Combinations of capital and in-labor are the result of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations when lawfully formed for lawful purposes are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws, and neither can be permitted to break them.

Upon the whole, the platform is a model of thought, of diction, and above all of brevity. It is a platform that will be read by the masses of the people, line by line and word by word;

and its logic will sink into the public mind, sprout, grow and bear fruit in abundance before the November harvest comes.

DIPPY DEMOCRACY.
Our Democratic and demagogical contemporary, The News, gives the intelligent circle of its constant readers a dissertation on "the full dinner pail." If the editorial is a sample of Democratic campaign material, the Lord deliver that party from the balance of it.

"The workingman's dinner pail hasn't had much in it for a long time," asserts The News. It has been pretty well filled, we think. We know it has contained more than it did under the last Democratic administrations.

"The rich man becomes richer and the poor man poorer." This expression is not original with The News. It has been the cry of lazy rascals through the centuries, and is one of the stock phrases of Socialists and Anarchists.

"The Republican party cannot escape the responsibility, and it continues in power Roosevelt will be monarch." This is hysterical.

"The country is afraid of Roosevelt."
The country isn't afraid of him, but some of the people are. For example, the Democratic politicians are very fearful of him, and even some of the so-called Trusts are said to be not too confiding in his willingness to protect them from just treatment.

Modern Democracy is more or less foolish, but if this is a sample the Democracy of The News is "dippy."

The Republican National Convention was nothing more than a ratification meeting. Persons desiring to see a real live convention are respectfully referred to the coming Democratic National Convention. The management promise that the performance will be continuous and exciting.

The Hon. Billie Root gets at the bottom of things. It's characteristic of the roots.

The Republican National Convention
is a cosmopolitan gathering. It contains delegates from Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Philippines. There's nothing exclusive about the Republican party. It is really more democratic than the alleged Democratic party.

The Washington Observer credits
The News of this place with one of our editorials on the relation of business to the campaign. The editorial declares among other things that:
"When the noise and excitement of politics are over, and the continuation of Republican policy is officially announced, there will be a resumption of business." It was a good editorial, and under other circumstances The News would no doubt have been pleased to be thus accredited, but the sentiments are anything but Democratic,

and we fear our esteemed contemporary will not be willing to stand for them.

"Strikes are quarrels between organized capital and organized labor about the division of profits," says
"Uncle Joe" Cannon, and he says
truly.

Senator Dewey wanted to close up the Convention business and go home yesterday, but the country delegates were having too much fun, and they wouldn't hear of it. They don't often get to town, while Chauncey lives
there.

The Somerset Herald celebrates its 77th birthday by discarding the old folio form and coming out as an 8-page paper. It is putting in an entire new equipment. A folder is to be added, when the paper will be cut, pasted and folded just as The Courier is. We congratulate the oldest paper in Somerset county upon this latest evidence of its enterprise.

Willie Hearst got a bad fall in Minnesota. He captured the organization, but the other fellows turned up with the delegates. Willie grasped at the shadow and lost the substance.

The London Times approves the Republican platform. This is rather remarkable. Heretofore, the British press has never been able to see anything good in any but Democratic platforms.

Governor LaFollette seems to be one of the rule-or-ruin sort. He was about the only cloud in the peaceful sky at Chicago. The cloud wasn't bigger than a man's hand and it isn't likely to grow.

New Postoffice Clerk for Uniontown.

postoffice department of the resignment of salaries, etc., in the postoffice of Western Pennsylvania it is stated that Uniontown gets one additional clerk at $500 a year, and that one clerk gets an increase in pay from $600 to $700 a year. At Connellville one clerk is increased from $500 to $700 and one from $700 to $800.

Told After Hours

By Luke Nyack.

THE WHIRL OF PLEASURE.

A youthful American, over whose head perhaps fourteen summers have flown, was before the Burgess for shooting firecrackers. "What do you shoot firecrackers for?" asked the Burgess. "You only spend your money uselessly—blow it, so to speak—and I don't see much fun in it." There was quiet dignity in the boy's answer. "A very great many people see pleasure in it," he remarked.

And a great many people see pleasure in diversities more absurd than shooting firecrackers. A friend of mine over in New Haven met me the other evening, his clothes dripping wet, his teeth chattering in the cool evening air and his rubber boots half filled with sand and mud. He had been "frogging," he said, and he never had so much fun before in his life. He had three sleek looking frogs in a newspaper. Two days afterwards
I saw him again. There was red dan-del around his throat and the scent of turpentine in the air.

There is a bricklayer in town who gets drunk regularly three times every two weeks. He carries a pocket calendar and keeps his dates accurately.
He was disappointed the other day because a Dutch policeman arrested him before he was properly paralyzed.
"I always like to put the finishing touches on a job," he confided to me.
"If I am arrested before I'm done, it seems as if I don't get a run for my money." Three pleasurable whirls every two weeks comprise the round of this man's pleasure. Editor Likins might write a thesis on this particular case.

WILMERDING WATER

Said to Contain Certain Well Defined
Fighting Qualities.

The Wilmerding News says: "At a police court trial Monday evening, it was stated that one man hit another with a bottle of water and that they had been drinking that fluid before becoming engaged in a heated argument which culminated in the blow being struck. If indulgence in that beverage, which is furnished to the citizens of Wilmerding incites men to bloody deeds, it is high time the water company be called upon to build another filter bed for the water which is supplied here, or furnish some sort of device to every family to attach to the hydrant and which will destroy the fight-producing germ before it can be absorbed into the systems of the consumers. Once this sort of thing gets a start there is no telling where it may end, and as the weather grows warmer and the water is more freely used, an insurrection is liable to develop at any time."

Some men will pay some some other one. Now, when you won't pay a cent more than it's worth, yet if you were paying that amount to the ordinary tailor you would be paying a deal too much.

YOUNG CUBANS WON

Their Seventh Game of the Season From Uniontown.

The Young Cuban Giants, Connellsville's crack colored base ball team, defeated the Uniontown colored team at Marietta & Stillwagon park on Wednesday afternoon. The score was 6 to 4. Taylor, who pitched for the Cubans, had 13 strike-outs, and let Uniontown down with six hits. He is a West Virginia boy and has speed to burn with an assortment of curves that is mystifying. J. Bird was behind the bat for the Giants. Taylor had a three-bagger and so did Miller for Uniontown.

Mills at second for the Giants had two home runs and accepted five out of six chances at second. Rice and Six were the Uniontown battery. Dennis Johnson, the Giants' star catcher, couldn't get the ball safe yesterday. He failed to get a hit in four times up, all of his drives going into the fielders' hands.

Next week the Giants play a game with an all-star combination selected from Western Pennsylvania.

WHEAT CROP FIGURES.

Prospect for Yield This Year
More Favorable Than Otherwise.

NOT AS LARGE AS IN 1902.

High Prices This Year Have Brought About a Serious Falling Off in This Country's Export Trade—Prospects
For Other Crops.

The report of the Department of Agriculture for the first of June upon the wheat outlook has been received in business circles with some satisfaction. The crop prospects are shown to be favorable rather than otherwise, although they suggest a continuance of the conservatism that has been such a marked characteristic of business for many months. In comparison with previous years the outlook is for barely a fair crop of winter wheat. It should be remembered that domestic requirements naturally increase from year to year, so that with a population of 22,000,000 we are apt to have less surplus for foreign markets. Notwithstanding the fact that corn stands first in value among the cereals for domestic consumption and cotton is the most important crop for the export trade, wheat in wheat has not been lost since the time it was first in importance in both domestic and foreign markets as a basis of business prosperity. The fact that it will be remembered, also extended wheat in the actual value of the amount produced, and with corn and oats is the main food of live stock and therefore the foundation for provisions. Hence, attention is less absorbed by wheat, but the latter is more associated in the mind of the public with the general welfare of the country than are other crops.

While the prospect is not favorable for a large crop of winter wheat, we seem likely to be favored with a fair yield. The area sown in winter wheat this season is in round numbers only 27,000,000 acres, as compared with 22,500,000 acres last year, and the average condition is only 77.7 against 82.2 a year ago in the corresponding time. These facts indicate a yield of about 366,000,000 bushels as compared with about 400,000,000 bushels last year, which was less than in either of the two preceding years. In 1902 a little less than 412,000,000 bushels was raised and in 1901 the crop harvested was 429,675,000 bushels.

There is reason to hope that the deficiency in the winter wheat crop may be partly made good by the increased yield of the spring grain; but this latter crop is more subject to the vicissitudes of weather, and since the department's estimates were made conditions have been unfavorable rather than otherwise. It is estimated that the average sown to spring wheat this year is about 17,150,000 acres, which is slightly above that of the preceding year, but it is below the area sown in either of the two immediately preceding years, and also smaller than that of 1898 and 1899. In 1901, when the largest crop over produced was harvested, over 21,000,000 acres were sown to spring wheat and the spring yield was in the neighborhood of 319,000,000 bushels.

The condition of spring wheat on June 1 was 93.4, which would indicate a yield of 292,000,000 bushels. It is probable, however, that the high condition of the spring crop will not be maintained to the time of harvest, being subject to unfavorable changes through natural causes. Present indications point to a yield of wheat, both winter and spring, in round numbers, of 658,000,000 bushels, which is more than the yield of last year, but less than was raised in 1902 and 1901. In the latter year, it will be remembered, was harvested the "bumper" crop, but even as early as 1898 we had harvested wheat crops of 675,000,000 bushels and over; considerable more than there is any prospect of doing the present season. It is interesting to note that in 1901 about 748,500,000 bushels were harvested on an area of 49,895,000 acres.

The high prices prevailing this year have brought about a serious falling off in the export trade and there is little likelihood of an increased export business from the present growing crops; even a decline in the foreign movement would not be surprising. More than any other crop the price of wheat in the world's markets is subject to the harvests abroad, our exports depending not only upon our own surplus, as in the case of cotton, but upon the amount of grain available from other countries. American wheat occupies a less commanding position in the world's markets today than ten years ago and seems likely to lose more ground unless there is a stimulus to increase the acreage sown.

In connection with wheat considerable interest is taken in the predictions of a very heavy increase in the area planted to corn this year, but it is yet too early to give reliable estimates.

K. OF P. PILGRIMAGE.

The Incomparable Trip Down the Glorious St. Lawrence River.

The probabilities are that for the second annual excursion to Quebec and the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, as arranged by the committee of the Knights of Columbus, Buffalo, N. Y., Council No. 134, there will be gathered together for this eight-day trip a most representative congregation of Catholic gentlemen and ladies. Outside of this opportunity for the Knights, their families and their friends to visit the wonderful and famous shrine, the trip is superior as a vacation recreation. There is every indication that the number to which the party is limited will be reached.

All of the arrangements are of a special character and perfect in detail. The expense is certainly reasonable, especially as the accommodations are of the very highest class, and much more reasonable than could be had by the individual at a much higher rate. Every item of expense en route, both directions, is covered by the $46.50; that is, transportation, berths, meals and hotels, a day and a half in Quebec and the Shrine; same in Montreal. Leave Buffalo, Monday, July 11, returning Monday, July 18. Tickets will be good 30 days, good to stop over on the return trip; and side trips to the Saguenay and Catholic School can be made. There will be a side trip to Niagara Falls, down the Great Gorge, returning via the Canadian side; also the ride on the "Maid of the Mist."

The party is limited to 500 persons, and it therefore behooves those who are privileged to join this magnificent party to immediately make arrangements. Certainly this is the most magnificent inland water trip in the world. Special steamers and special trains are arranged for, as well as the best and finest hotel service in Canada. The committee having the matter in charge is Frank A. Gross, Ed. D. Morgan and Ed. N. Mills. From present indications the list will be full before the date. Mr. Gross, 289 Main street, will gladly furnish detailed information.

THE PENROSE FAMILY.

Two Brothers of Boise May Be Sent to the United States Senate.

Chicago, June 22.—The Penroses family of Pennsylvania may have three members in the United States within the next three years. Boise of Pennsylvania, Spencer of Colorado and Richard of Arizona.

The two brothers of the Keystone State leader are here at the head of their respective state delegations. Spencer of Colorado is connected with the Governor's staff. He visited Senator Penrose this morning and the indication that he would be a colleague of his kinsman was circulated.

Richard Penrose is a person of great prominence in Arizona. He is reputed to be a scientist of international fame. As a mineralogist he has explored every mineral country in the world except Australia and he will sail for that country soon in company with Colonel Bowman of Pennsylvania.

Voting Machines May Come.

Voting machines may come into use in the State of Pennsylvania. An effort will be made at the next session of the legislature to have a bill enacted which will permit the use of future elections. Governor Stone, it will be remembered, vetoed a similar bill. The argument against the machine was the expense of purchasing, which will cost something like $500 each. There are many arguments, however, in favor of the voting machine, one of which is that with the machines fraud is almost impossible, and the result of an election is each voting district can be ascertained immediately after the polls close, as the machine is self-registered.

Sunfish Protected Now.

The gamey little sunfish is now protected by law and can only be legally taken during the same open season as his kinsman, the black bass, from June 15 to February 15 inclusive, and must be caught only with rod, hook and line. The sunfish certainly merits protection, as it furnishes good sport when its full size is attained, taking the bait with avidity, and as a table delicacy is far superior to the bass when properly cooked. Great numbers of these fish are caught in the spring-time, when very small, and the new law will doubtless put an end to the practice.

CHAPTER XXXV.

One morning, after hope was dead, he was listlessly scanning the line of the horizon as the rising sun threw it into relief, more from habit than expectancy, when his heart almost stopped its feeble beating, for land was there before him! His ruined eyes did not deceive him. Dominating the evidence of his weakened senses and fearing the delusions of a disordered imagination, he refrained from communicating his impressions to any of the others until the light of day determined the accuracy of his vision. Then he whispered the news to Katharine, the apathetic woman told it to the stolid colonel, and then Desborough cried it to his dry crew. The wind sprang up at the moment, too, and in a few hours they beached the boat upon a low sandy shore, with the waves breaking gently over it in long easy rollers.

Desborough, as the strongest of the party, started inland, finding by and by a little stream of fresh water, and further on, on higher ground, seeing a house, the smoke curling from its chimneys showing that it was inhabited. To the bubbling spring he half led, half dragged, his shipwrecked party. They drank sparingly by his direction and were refreshed, for with the cool water life and hope came back to them once more. Then he left them again to the shore of Virginia, and the people of the house welcomed and cared for the poor castaways, sharing with them their humble store with the kindly hospitality for which the land was famous. Their long voyage was at an end; their troubles were over. The colonel and Katharine would be free again; they might go home once more, and Desborough would be a prisoner.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

It was springtime again in Virginia. The sky, its blue depths accentuated by the shifting clouds, was never more clear, wherever it appeared in the intervals of sunshine, nor the air more fresh and pure, even in that land famed for its bright skies and its mild climate, than it was this April day, which, with its sunshine and showers in unregulated alternation, seemed symbolic of life—that life of which every tender blade of grass, every venturesome flower thrusting its head above the sod, seemed to speak. There were health and strength in the gentle breeze, which, constantly playing there in the budding leaves of the great trees, already putting forth little evanescents of that splendid foliage with which they decked themselves in the full glory of summer. That merry wind which swept through the open boathouse at the end of the wharf laid a bold hand upon the curls which fell about the neck of the young girl sitting there in the door near the water on one of the benches, gazing out over the broad reaches of the quiet, ever beautiful Potomac, rippled gently by the wind under the late afternoon sun. The gallant little breeze, fragrant with balm and perfume of the trees and flowers, kissed a faint color into her pale cheeks and seemed to whisper to her desperate heart in murmuring sounds that framed themselves into the immortal words "hope, hope."

The young girl had but yesterday entered upon her twentieth spring. Four months ago there had not been a merrier, lighter hearted, gay, more content young maiden in the desolate Virginia, and today she thought as she looked down at her thin hand outlined so clearly upon the vivid cardinal cloak she wore, which had dropped unheeded on the seat by her side—today she was like that man in the play of whom her father read—a grave man, no, not a man at all.

One, in her enthusiasm, she had fondly imagined that she had possessed all those darling qualities of energy and action, those manly virtues which might have been hers by inheritance could the accident of sex have been reversed. But now she knew she was but a woman after all—so weak, so feeble, so listless. What had she left to live for? Once it was her father, then it was her country, then it was her lover. Now? Nothing! Her father, at the request of congress, would soon resume his interrupted duties in France, now become more important than ever. He was a man of the world and a soldier, a diplomat.

The hard experiences of the past few months were for the most part exciting, but only part of a lifetime spent in large adventure, soon forgotten in some other strenuous part demanded by some other strenuous exigency. But she! No, she was not a man at all, but a woman, unused to such scenes and happenings as fate had lately made her a participant in. Her father might leave his country. He had not lost his love; his heart went with him, as a young man leaving his mother in tears behind. She could sympathize with waiting women now and understand.

There, too, far away in another state, lay the lover of her girlhood's happy days—the bright eager, eager, gallant, joyous lad. What good courtesies had he been! How they had laughed and played and ridden and sailed and hunted and danced and dined through the morning of life! How pleasant had been that life indeed! He was quiet now. She could no longer join in his ringing laugh; the sound of his voice was stifled. They might never play together again. Was there any play at all in life? That was another answer. There was the white haired mother, the stately little royalist, Madame Talbot, who slept in peace on the hill at Fairview Hall, her ambitions, her hopes and her loyalty buried with her, leaving the place untenanted save by wistful memories. She, too, had gone. Answers? They crowded thick upon her! There were the officers of the Yarmouth, Captain Vincent, Beauclump, Hollins and all the other officers and men with whom she had come in contact on that frightful cruise. There were the heroic men who had stayed by their ship, who had seen the favored few go away in the only boat that was left seaworthy, without a murmur at being left behind, who had faced death unflinching, unrepining, sinking down in the dark water with a cheer upon their lips. There was the old sailor, too, with his unquenchable patriotism, his friend because the friend of her lover and Philip, her brother, and there was Seymour himself. Ah, what were all these to him? Gone, and how she loved him! She leaned her head upon her hand and thought of him. Here in this boat-house he had first spoken to her of his love; here she had first felt his lips touch her cheek. There, rocked gently by the light breeze, upon the water at her feet was the familiar little pleasure boat. She had not allowed any one to row her about in it since her return, in spite of much entreaty. It was this very clock she wore that day, nearly the very hour. The place was replete with sweet memories of happy days, though to think of them now broke her heart.

It all came back to her as it had come again and again. She briefly reviewed that acquaintance, short though it was, which had changed the whole course of her life. She saw him again as he struck prompt to defend her honor in the hall, resenting a ruffian's smiling hand stretched out to her. She saw him lying wounded and senseless there at her feet. She saw him stretched prone on that shattered deck on that ruined ship, pale, blood stained, senseless again, again unheeding her bitter cry. She would have called once more upon him save that she knew humanity has no voice which reaches out into the darkness by which it may call back those who are once gone to live beyond. She did not weep; that were a small thing, a trifle. She sat and wept. Four short months had changed it all. How young she had been! Would she ever be young again? How full of the joy of life! Its currents swept by her unheeded now. Why had not God been merciful to her that she could have died there upon the sea? She thought, Ah, poor humanity never learns its lesson! Fate had it is because we have no measure by which to fathom its mighty depths. She saw herself old and lonely, forgotten, but not forgetting. But even then lacked she not opportunity. Womanlike, in spite of her constancy, she took a melancholy pleasure in the thought that there was one still who lingered for the shattered remnant of her broken heart, who lived for the sound of her voice and the glance of her eyes and the light of her face. One there was, handsome, brave, distinguished, gentle, of ancient name, assured station, ample fortune, who longed to lay all he was or had at her feet.

But what were these things? Nothing to her—nothing! There was but one. As she had said on the ship to Desborough: "I love a sailor. You are not he." And yet her soul was filled with pity for the gallant gentleman, and she thought of him tenderly, with deep affection.

Presently she heard quick footsteps on the floor of the boathouse, and, turning her head, she saw him. He held a letter, an official packet, with the seal broken, open in his hand. "Oh, Miss Wilton, you here?" he said. "I have looked everywhere for you. Do you not think the evening air grows chill? Is it not too cold for you out here in the boathouse? Allow me." And then, with that gentle solicitude which women prize, he lifted the neglected cloak and tenderly wrapped it about her shoulders.

"Thank you," she said gratefully, faintly smiling up at him, "but I hardly need it. I do not feel at all cold. The air is so pleasant, and the sun is not yet set, you see. Did you wish to see me about anything special, Lord Desborough?"

"No—yes—that is—Oh, Mistress Katharine, the one special want of my life is to see you always and everywhere. You know that. Nay, never lift your hand. I remember. I will try not to trespass upon your orders again. I came to tell you that I am going away."

"Going away," she repeated sadly. "Has your exchange been made?" "Yes, a courier came to the Hall a short time ago, and here it is. My orders, you see, I must leave at once."

"I am sorry—indeed sorry—that you must go."

He started suddenly as if to speak, a little flash of hope flickering in his despondent face, but she continued quickly:

"It has been very pleasant for me to have you here, except that you have been a prisoner. But now you will be free, and for that, of course, I rejoice. But I have so few friends left," she went on mournfully, "I am loath to see one depart, even though he be an enemy."

"Oh, do not call me an enemy, I entreat you, Katharine! Oh, let me speak just once again!" he interrupted with his usual impetuosity, "and talk not to me of enemies! While the earth holds you I am not free; ay, even should heaven claim you I still am bound. All the days of my captivity here I have been a most willing and happy prisoner—your prisoner. I have looked forward with dread and anguish to the day when I might be exchanged and have to go away. Here would I have been content to pass my life, by your side. Oh, once again let me plead! My duty, my honor, call me now to the service of my king. I no longer have excuse for delay, but you have almost made me forget there was a king. Now that I must go, why should I go alone?" he went on eagerly. "I know, I know you love the other; but he is gone. You do not hate me; you even like me. You regret my going. Perhaps as days go by you will regret it more. We are at least friends; let me take care of you in future. Oh, it kills me to see you so white and indifferent to life and all that it has or should have for you! You are only a girl yet. I cannot bear to see all the color gone out of your sweet face, the light out of your eyes. The sight of that thin hand breaks my heart. Won't you live for me to love—live and let me love you? Your father goes tomorrow, so he says, and you will be left alone here. Why should it be? Go with me. Give me a right to do what my heart wishes to do for you—to coax the roses back into your cheek, to woo the laugh to your lips, to win happiness back to your heart, to devote my life to you, darling. Have pity on me, have pity on my love—have pity!" His voice dropped into a passionate whisper, as he pleaded with her he sank down upon one knee by her side, beseeching by word and gesture and look that she should show him that pity he could see in her eyes, that he knew was in her heart, and to which he made his last appeal, and then, lifting the hem of her dress to his lips with an unconscious movement of passionate reverence, he waited.

She looked at him in silence a moment. So young so handsome so appealing, her heart filled with sorrow and sympathy for him. "There are no more days for me," she said, "I have no more days. How could she drive it away and crush his heart? It might be cruel, but she had no answer, no other answer, no new word, to tell him. Her eyes filled with tears. She could not trust herself to speak, she only shook her head.

"Ah," he said, "I am old and feeble, throwing up my hands with a gesture of despair, I know it. Well, the dream is over at last. This is the end. I sought life, and found death; that, at least, if I shall come I shall welcome. Would God I had gone down with the ship! You have no pity; you let a dead image—an idea—stand between you and a living love. Will you never forget?"

"Never," she said softly. "Love knows no death. He is alive—here, but do not grieve so for me; I am not worth it. You will go away and forget me."

"No! You have said it, 'love knows no death.' I am alive—here, as long as I live I shall love and remember. How I waited and waited! Katharine, I would wait forever for you," he said, suddenly catching at the trifle.

"No, it would be no use. My friend, we both must suffer; it cannot be otherwise. I esteem you, respect you, adore you. You have protected me, honored me; my gratitude! She went on brokenly, "You might ask anything of me but my heart, and that is given away."

"Let me take you without it, then. I want but you." "No, Lord Desborough, it cannot be. Do not ask me again. No! I cannot say I wish it otherwise."

"Katharine, will you promise me, if there ever comes a time—'I promise,' she said, 'but the time will never come.' He looked at her as dying men look to the light; there was a long silence, and then he said: 'I must go now, Katharine. I suppose I must bid you goodbye now?' 'Yes, I think it would be best.' 'I shall pass this way again on my journey to Alexandria in half an hour; may I not speak once more to you then?' 'No,' she said finally, after a long pause. 'I think it best that we should end it now. It can do no good at all. Goodbye, and may God bless you!'

He bent and kissed her hand and then, stopping a moment and looked at her, saying never a word.

"Goodbye, again," she said.

On the instant he turned and left her.

The Japanese Sleeve Dog.

The Japs have a quaint standard of perfection by which they assess canine merits. Thus the sleeve dog has or ought to have five cardinal "points"—the "butterfly head," in which the color marking represents a butterfly, the white blaze on nose and forehead forming the body, and the rest of the face and ears the wings; the sacred "Y" found in the wedge shape of the blaze running up the forehead; in the center of this sacred "Y" an isolated circle of color, which typifies the "bump of knowledge," the "valuable feet" requiring ample feathering, as the fringing hair is technically called, and lastly the tightly curled, profusely feathered tail symbolical of the sacred flower of Japan, the chrysanthemum.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Modish Materials and Shades—Linen Gowns in Natural Tones.

The revival of taffetas, brocades and velvets leads to further extravagance in the way of trappings, and certainly these have never before been more artistic and more expensive.

Some of the fashionable shades are really very trying, such as the olive tints and the browns. The rose tints are becoming more faded, and this is not apt to be because in hot weather. The furs for coats are rapidly changing into one for chucks, but these are becoming so common that it is doubtful whether they will long remain smart.

Thin gowns in the natural tones will be richly trimmed with lace and applications. They will be used even for very dressy occasions this summer, and the little jacket and skirt suits of linen will be almost entirely for street wear during the warm weather.

The long, shoulderless "cote" is an absolutely necessary feature of the season's modes.

Both the very straight and the very upturned brims figure prominently in millinery.

Fleehus are sewed to the gowns instead of being draped carelessly. In this way a better effect is secured, especially across the shoulders, where a loose flap is apt to be lumpy.

The picture in the illustration shows a crêpe de chine waist made with a cross over effect and shoulder straps fastened down with fancy buttons. The lower vest is of lace.

CANNON STIRS CONVENTION.

anner on the other. It is true that the extraordinary combinations have been formed. That they have been in the main capitalized to their full value and by the aid of capital and energy securities have been issued in many instances to many times the value of the properties combining, is also true. The Republican party has enacted legislation within the constitution, prohibiting such combinations; and President Roosevelt has kept his oath to see to it that the laws are executed. And by the decisions of the highest courts the Republican legislation has been sustained and the laws are being enforced. All are equal before the law—the high and the mighty, the weak and the lowly, the capitalist and the laborer, whose capital is his muscle intelligently directed, the rich and the poor—all have equality of opportunity before the law, and all must abide by the law. Our civilization is built upon obedience to the law.

The trust buster who is always "bustling" the trusts by word, but never by action, would lead the people to believe that all the production of the country is under the direction of a few combinations. Behold how plain a tale shall put that down. All the alleged trust properties engaged in production in the year 1900 produced 14 per cent, while the independent factories produced 86 per cent of the factory production of the country. It is impossible to permanently corner capital, and muscle and the raw material which nature has produced in such abundance.

Laws Passed by Republicans.
The history of civilized government is a record of peaceful administration under established policies, not of new laws or new interpretation. In the old world a new law or a new policy, affecting the general welfare of the people, is an evil of a generation. In this country new laws come more frequently; but those of a general character rarely offend the people once in an administration. The McKinley administration was marked by a new tariff law which restored prosperity, gold standard act which gave stability to our currency; the annexation of Hawaii; a short and triumphant war with Spain, which brought freedom to Cuba, and placed Porto Rico and the Philippines under our flag. The administration of Roosevelt has brought an end to the policy of "imperialism" with growing evil government in the Philippines, and a free and independent government in Cuba; the purchase and authorization of the Panama canal, the arbitration of the end war and the end of the end of the end, and that they are, one and all, endorsed by the people.

Let me make my nominations in order and appeal to the people of the country for a renewal of power to the Republican party, standing for the whole people, and that they are, one and all, endorsed by the people.

Speaker Is Given an Ovation.
At the close of the address the delegates rose, cheering and waving hats, flags and handkerchiefs. The speaker paid but little heed to the applause after one bow as he closed, but returning quickly to his seat, enjoyed upon the work of the convention.

Many delegates began leaving the hall after Mr. Cannon's speech. Finally Mr. Cannon rapped for order and called for the report of the committee on rules, which was presented by General Bingham of Pennsylvania. General Bingham stated that the committee had adopted the rules of the Fifty-eighth congress when not inconsistent with the rules of the convention. At the suggestion of Senator Culom of Illinois, the reading of the report was discontinued.

Senator Foraker of Ohio offered the following amendment: "Resolved, That the report of the committee on rules be amended so as to allow six delegates from Hawaii with six votes in conformity with her sister territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Indian territory and Alaska."

Senator Hopkins opposed the amendment on the ground that it gave a territory too much representation and that combined the territories might some time hold the balance of power in national convention.

Compromises Agreed Upon.
After short speeches for and against the amendment Mr. Bingham offered this substitute, which was adopted: "That the representation from Hawaii shall be two delegates, provided that this shall not impair the rights and privileges of the six delegates already seated in this convention."

After the adoption of the substitute, the reading of the report of the committee on resolutions was punctuated with the applause.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts then presented the report of the resolutions committee. The reading of the report was punctuated with the applause.

Senator Lodge moved the adoption of the platform. The reading of the platform was punctuated with the applause.

The convention at 3:50 adjourned.

PLATFORM ADOPTED.
Republican Declaration of Principles Pleases the Convention.

Chicago, June 23.—The feature of the platform adopted by the Republican national convention is the reference to the tariff. After numerous earnest conferences among the leaders the following plank was formulated:

Protection, which guards and develops our industries, is a cardinal policy of the Republican party. The measure of protection should be at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principle of protection and therefore rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, but this work cannot safely be committed to any other hands than those of the Republican party. To entrust it to the Democratic party is to invite disaster.

Chinese Reformers Pardoned.
Peking, June 23.—An imperial edict has just been issued which pardons all who were connected with the reform movement in 1898 with the exception of Kang Yuwei, Liang Chiao and Sunwen.

Furniture Makers Locked Out.
Chicago, June 23.—Nine furniture factories closed their doors, turning a threatened general strike of wood workers into a general lockout.

Man Killed in Saloon Fight.
St. Louis, June 23.—Henry Grammer, a cowboy, killed Leonard Fiebeling during a saloon fight at Malta.

In 1893, the Democratic party declared the protective tariff unconstitutional, or whether it demands tariff reform or tariff revision, its real object is always the destruction of the protective system.

However specious the name the purpose is ever the same. A Democratic tariff has always been followed by business adversity; a Republican tariff by business prosperity. To a Republican Congress and a Republican President this great question can be safely entrusted.

When the only free trade country among the great nations agitates a return to protection the chief protective country should not falter in maintaining it.

We have extended widely our foreign markets and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever it can be safely carried out.

Referring to the Roosevelt administration the platform says:
The American people were fortunate in his successor, to whom they turned with a trust and confidence which have been fully justified. President Roosevelt brought to the great responsibilities thus sadly forced upon him a clear head, a brave heart, an earnest passion, and high ideals of public duty and public service. True to the principles of the Republican party and to the policies which that party had declared, he has also shown himself ready for every emergency and has met new and vital questions with ability and success.

The confidence of the people in his justice, inspired by his public career, enabled him to render personally an invaluable service to the country by bringing about a settlement of the coal strike which threatened such disastrous results at the opening of the winter of 1902.

Our foreign policy under his administration has not only been able, vigorous and dignified, but in the highest degree successful. The complicated questions which arose in Venezuela were settled in such a way by President Roosevelt that the Monroe doctrine was again vindicated and the cause of peace and arbitration greatly advanced.

His prompt and vigorous action in Panama, which won commend in the highest terms, not only secured to us the canal route, but avoided foreign complications which might have been of a very serious character. He has continued the policy of President McKinley in the Orient, and our position in China, signified by our recent commercial treaty with that empire, has never been so high.

He secured the tribunal by which the vexed and serious question of the Alaskan boundary was finally settled.

Whenever crimes against humanity have been perpetrated, which have shocked our people, his prompt action has made our good offices have been tendered, but always with due regard to international obligations.

Flag Is Respected Abroad.
Under his guidance we had ourselves at peace with all the world and never were we more respected or our wishes more regarded by foreign nations.

Pre-eminently successful in regard to our foreign relations he has been equally successful in dealing with domestic questions. The country has known that the public credit and the national currency were absolutely safe in the hands of the administration. In the enforcement of the law he has shown not only courage, but the wisdom which understands that to permit laws to be violated or disregarded opens the door to anarchy and the just enforcement of the law is the soundest conservatism. He has held firmly to the fundamental American doctrine that all men must obey the law, that there must be no distinction between rich and poor, between strong and weak, but that justice and equal protection under the law must be secured to every citizen without regard to race, creed or condition.

His Administration has been distinguished by vigorous and honorable, high-minded and patriotic. We commend it with a reservation to the considerate judgment of the American people.

The platform declares for the gold standard; favors legislation to assist the merchant marine, a navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack; approval of exclusion of Chinese labor; the honest enforcement of the civil service laws; liberal pensions; arbitration of international differences and protection to American citizens and property in foreign lands.

The policy of the administration with reference to China is commended. Reduction of representation in congress and in the electoral college is recommended for any state which has disfranchised any voter contrary to the federal constitution. Neither capital nor labor must be permitted to violate the law or infringe upon the rights of the people. The platform contains a paragraph lamenting the death of President McKinley and congratulating the people on his successor, commending the policies pursued by him with reference to Venezuela, Panama and other foreign countries. His fearless enforcement of the law without distinction of person is applauded. His administration is recommended without reservation to the American people.

UNITING ON FAIRBANKS.
Entries in Vice Presidential Race Being Rapidly Scratched.

Chicago, June 23.—Entries in the vice presidential race are being scratched with great rapidity since the withdrawal of Representative Pitt was announced. Colorado, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Missouri have all practically decided not to place their favorite sons in nomination.

The Missouri delegation seems least inclined to abandon their intention to place Mr. Walbridge in nomination. A meeting of the delegation was called for the purpose of canvassing on the question. It was postponed until this morning and the opinion expressed that no other nomination than Senator Fairbanks would be made. The Wisconsin delegation has come to the same conclusion without a meeting regarding presenting the name of Governor Schofield.

However, if Colorado should set the pace by making it a free for all event, each state will bring forth its aspirant without hesitation.

Furniture Makers Locked Out.
Chicago, June 23.—Nine furniture factories closed their doors, turning a threatened general strike of wood workers into a general lockout.

Man Killed in Saloon Fight.
St. Louis, June 23.—Henry Grammer, a cowboy, killed Leonard Fiebeling during a saloon fight at Malta.
